

Services Provided by CHRLA...

- Investigate Fair Housing Complaints
- Testing of Rental Properties
- Fair Housing Audit
- Fair Housing Training
- Educational Forums
- Provide informational brochures
- Tenant/Landlord information and referral services

The services provided by CHRLA will ultimately result in furthering equal housing opportunities to all persons regardless of protected status. The investigation of housing discrimination complaints will enable CHRLA to intervene in situations where discrimination is occurring, educate the housing provider, and potentially limit the harm to the complainant. By conducting random tests on rental properties CHRLA will identify discriminatory practices, educate the housing providers and prevent future violations.

The Center for Human Rights Law & Advocacy (CHRLA) is a public non-profit 501 (c)(3) agency established in 1997. CHRLA's specific purpose is to provide charitable assistance to and public support for promoting the public health, safety, peace and tranquility through the establishment and implementation of programs which identify and seek to eradicate discrimination and promote tolerance of the diverse culture, ores, lifestyles, and beliefs in order to achieve and maintain harmony and realize equal opportunity. As the non-profit arm of the Regional Human Rights/Fair Housing Commission (Commission), CHRLA shares the Commission's extensive experience in promoting fair housing through enforcement and education.

Fair Housing Training and Educational Forums

Presentations will include information regarding:

- ⇒ Identifying fair housing complaints
- ⇒ The procedures used to investigate complaints
- ⇒ How and why tests are used
- ⇒ Available remedies
- ⇒ Resource referrals

Education and Outreach will be provided to:

- ⇒ Members of the Housing Industry
- ⇒ Apartment Owners
- ⇒ Social Service Agencies
- ⇒ Management Companies
- ⇒ Senior Community
- ⇒ Low or Moderate income persons

Participants at workshops and presentations will sign in and will be provided with a survey to assess the level of satisfaction they experienced while attending one of our education and outreach activities.

These surveys will help us to improve the quality of our services.
